

THE FYI ON YOUTH MINISTRY

EPISODE 13 | Multicultural ministry values

"When it comes to race, diversity, inclusion, and justice ask yourself: Why does it matter to do this work? Dig deep and when your why is captivating enough, lean into it. Everybody can begin a journey in this. It is not too late. Your daily steps of leaning into this are leading somewhere. Don't lose heart."

JENNIFER GUERRA ALDANA

1. In this episode, Jennifer guided us through some intercultural values that the FYI team shares. What are some values that your ministry already names or could name in the future? How could these values benefit the young people in your ministry?
2. Jennifer reminded us that intercultural ministry with young people happens in and outside of the youth group. What might you do to include and equip families and other adults to engage in these conversations with young people?
3. As you think about your ministry's call to intercultural ministry, you might find the following questions helpful to reflect on: Where do I see God at work in this? And, why does this matter to our students, to our ministry, to our church?